

WAGING NONVIOLENCE

PEOPLE-POWERED NEWS & ANALYSIS

Dear WNV readers,

Whether you are among the thousands who have signed up for our email list, or the hundreds who have given us financial support in 2016, you've helped Waging Nonviolence thrive as a publication and community space for those engaged in the struggle for a better world. That's why, with the year coming to an end, we want to share the following list of our top 10 most-read stories.

But before you dig in and explore exciting movement moments from the past year, we hope you'll consider supporting our work for the coming year. We are nearly halfway toward our goal of raising $15,000, which will ensure consistent coverage throughout 2016.

So, if you want to see more stories like the ones below — about indigenous resistance, anti-Trump organizing and how to build strong movements — please make an end-of-the-year tax-deductible donation or become a member today. If you sign up at \$3 per month or more, we will send you your choice of a number of gifts as a thank you.

Happy New Year!
Bryan Farrell and Eric Stoner

Editors, Waging Nonviolence

 Like on Facebook

 Follow on Twitter

 Forward to a Friend

Have you seen what we're giving away?

Get a copy of "This Is an Uprising" by Mark & Paul Engler or "Viking Economics" by George Lakey when you become a member of Waging Nonviolence, starting at \$5/month. You can also choose from a bunch of other books and DVD's starting at \$3/month.

Home

WNV's Most-Read Stories of 2016

10. Trump Taj Mahal workers continue strike despite impending closure

Workers will continue the longest strike in Atlantic City's history against the Trump Taj Mahal casino despite news that it will close this fall.

9. How to win in populist times

Despite being a political outsider, Trump decimated both political parties. If progressives want to stop him now, we need to understand how populism works.

8. Has the movement to prevent gun violence hit a tipping point?

With unprecedented support for gun control, advocates are pushing harder than ever for real change at both the federal and state levels.

7. How empathy, not protest, can defeat Trump and right wing extremism

If we take the time to understand what's actually going on in the heads of our opponents, we'll discover much more effective tactics than protest.

6. How Uber and Lyft were driven from Austin and replaced with a worker coop

By embracing conflict, taxi drivers kicked Uber and Lyft out of Austin and created the third largest worker-owned cooperative to take their place.

5. Why campaigns, not protests, get the goods

It's time to retire one-off protests in favor of direct action campaigns to maximize the chance of winning victories.

4. How to support Standing Rock and confront what it means to live on stolen land

Longtime activists engaged in solidarity organizing with indigenous groups offer action steps and best practices for non-Native supporters.

3. The Yes Men's guide to resisting Trump

Protests against Trump may feel great, but only strategic battles building toward a movement will change what we're living. Here are ways to get started.

2. Policing isn't working for cops either

In this climate of police violence, the system of policing isn't working for those working in law

Conflict

Culture

Regions

Issues

Series

Columns

Blog

Experiments

About WNV

Support WNV

enforcement either. It doesn't serve anyone.

1. North Dakota's Standing Rock Sioux aren't backing down to oil pipeline developers

The months-long encampment protesting the Dakota Access Pipeline remains steadfast and growing after 14 were arrested and bulldozers broke ground.

follow on Twitter | friend on Facebook | forward to a friend

unsubscribe from this list | update subscription preferences